The July number of The Forum will be, as usual, a special educational number; and, as usual, it will deal with very practical problems in education—problems of interest not to professional educators only, but problems that touch the very base of our system of training. The three articles are: "The Ideal Training of an American Boy," a working statement of the highest idea, by Prof. Thomas Davidson; "Research the Vitalizing Method of Higher Teaching," by President J. Stanley Hall—the most suggestive of his series of articles; and "Will the Co-educated Co-educate their Children?" in other words, will women who attended co-educational colleges send their children, especially their daughters, to these colleges? This article, by Prof. Martha Foote Crow, of the University of Chicago, is based on a series of inquiries made of the Albumne of Cornell, the University of Michigan, and the other co-educational schools.
